The classical Japanese language (æ–†èž bungo, "literary language"), also called "old writing" (ã•æ–† kobun), is the literary form of the Japanese language that was the standard until the early ShÅ•wa period (1926â€“89). It is based on Early Middle Japanese, the language as spoken during the Heian period (794â€“1185), but exhibits some later influences.

Japanese is a synthetic language with a regular agglutinative subject-object-verb morphology, with both productive and fixed elements. In language typology, it has many features divergent from most European languages. Its phrases are exclusively head-final and compound sentences are exclusively left-branching. There are many such languages, but few in Europe.
