Crockford's license is intended to mock potential users of his software and has caused problems for some open source projects who mistook the license for an open source variant of the MIT license. Affected open source developers have asked Crockford to change the license, but he has generally refused to do so. He has, however, granted "IBM, its customers, partners, and minions" permission "to ...

JavaScript: The Definitive Guide: Activate Your Web Pages

A new paradigm. JavaScript historically has had a reputation for being a clumsy language unsuitable for serious application development. This has been largely due to inconsistent implementations of the language itself and the Document Object Model (DOM) in various browsers, and the widespread use of buggy copy-and-paste code. Runtime errors were so common (and so difficult to debug) that few ...

No. The JSON should all be data, and if you include a comment, then it will be data too. You could have a designated data element called "_comment" (or something) that would be ignored by apps that use the JSON data.. You would probably be better having the comment in the processes that generates/receives the JSON, as they are supposed to know what the JSON data will be in advance, or at least ...
