A wind turbine, or alternatively referred to as a wind energy converter, is a device that converts the wind's kinetic energy into electrical energy.. Wind turbines are manufactured in a wide range of vertical and horizontal axis. The smallest turbines are used for applications such as battery charging for auxiliary power for boats or caravans or to power traffic warning signs.

The National Annex must be consulted for guidance on which method to use. In the UK, the National Annex allows either approach to be used. However, in almost all persistent design situations the use of the second method (the use of expressions 6.10a and 6.10b) will produce lower design values of the effects of actions (and for buildings, 6.10b usually gives the governing value).
